MAKING AN IMPACT

March 18-20, 2009

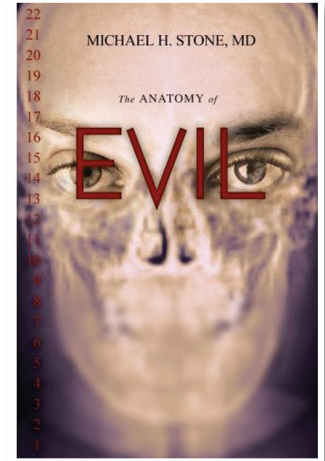

PRE-CONFERENCE

At the Extremes of Violence: Serial Killers, Mass Murder; Psychopathic & Sadistic Personality

MICHAEL H. STONE, MD

Professor of Clinical Psychiatry, Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons

For twenty years, Dr. Stone has researched various forms of murder, focusing on serial sexual homicide, uxoricide, and mass murder. He hosted the Discovery Channel series entitled Most Evil, devoted to the exploration of the causative factors behind men and women committing murders that were accounted "evil" by the media and the general public. In this presentation, Dr. Stone discusses psychopathic and sadistic personality disorders in the case of serial killers, and paranoid personality, often with schizoid features, in the case of mass murder. Background factors, including genetic predisposition, head injury, substance abuse, and environmental factors are also addressed.

ETHICS AND SOCIETY: PSYCHOLOGY AND THE DEATH PENALTY

STEPHEN BEHNKE, PHD
Director, APA Office of Ethics

3 hour Law and Ethics training that fulfills the biennial psychologist requirement and part of the 6 hour LCSW and MFT requirement.

KEYNOTE

Winning At Rehabilitation

TERRY A. KUPERS, MD, MSP

Institute Professor, Graduate School of Psychology, The Wright Institute

As political tides shift, exciting opportunities for rehabilitation abound. A huge population of individuals suffering from serious mental illness have been placed behind bars. This trend causes immense problems; at the same time it offers an opportunity to provide effective treatment and rehabilitation.

Dr. Kupers has served as consultant to Human Rights Watch, Amnesty International, and Stop Prisoner Rape, and has authored four books on forensic issues.

WRAP UP

Empathic Deficits and the Neuroscience of Sociopathy

THOMAS B. LEWIS, MD

Assistant Clinical Professor of Psychiatry, UCSF School of Medicine

Dr. Lewis has written and lectured extensively on a broad range of topics including the psychobiology of human development, the psychobiology of psychotherapy, the neuroscience and poetry of emotional experience, and the neuroscience of morality. In this presentation, Dr. Lewis discusses neurological evolution of empathy and current scientific knowledge regarding abnormalities in neural emotion systems that promote, and perhaps cause, sociopathic traits and behavior.
